I teach my kids who they are, who their mob is and how we're connected to each other - this teaches them at an early age about our kinship system.

Discussion Points

- Who are your close kin and where is your country?
- How do you teach children in your family about their kin?
- What would you like to know about your kin?

When we greet other blackfellas we ask “Who’s your Mob? Or where’s your country?”. This provides us with connection to others and a sense of identity.

Discussion Points

- Who is your mob?
- Where is your country?
- What does being connected to others mean to you personally?

I am of the Birrigubba, Bidjarra, Kairi and Jagalingu people of Qld. This makes our kids proud and strong knowing who they are and where we're from.
